

The Ambassador hosts a Chanukah party

The residence of Ambassador and Mrs. Eliashiv Ben-Horin was the setting for the annual Chanukah party of the Embassy of Israel held in December. Following the lighting of the Chanukah the Ambassador welcomed the group of 200 invited guests. At the invitation of Mr. Ben-Horin, Rabbi Reuven Bulka (above, left) spoke on the role of miracles in Jewish life. At the conclusion of the official ceremonies, latkes, donuts, wine and an assortment of delightful desserts were enjoyed by all.

Council on Aging

Volunteers needed to complete lists

Dr. Bernard Dolansky, Chairman of the Vaad's Coun-cil on Aging, has announced that his committee has recently launched a major demographic project in the Ottawa Jewish community: the construction of a complete list of Jewish residents who are 55 years of age or over.

The purpose of compiling this list is to create a practical and realistic base for present and future services for our older citizens. These include housing facilities, recreational and leisure activities, adult programs, and other areas in which the quality of life and general well-being of our Jewish seniors might be enhanced.

Dr. Dolansky stressed that proper demographic informa-and more efficient communication and planning of services for this important and growing segment of our community. In constructing an accurate and comprehensive list that would help to determine the size and scope of our senior adult community, it will be necessary to contact about 1,500 people by telephone within the next two weeks. To accomplish this, fifty volunteers are required who are willing to devote from four to six hours to the project. A number of members of the 50+ and A.L.L. clubs have already offered their services. Anyone wishing to help by making some telephone calls is asked to call Freda Frankel at 232-7306 (mornings) or 238-8673 (afternoons and evenings).

Dr. Dolansky expressed his confidence that the community at large will lend their assistance and co-operation to this important phase of the work of the Council on Aging.

Righteous Gentiles to be honoured

Ottawa site of the Holocaust Survivors Gathering in April

In 1985 Ottawa will host a unique event in Canadian Jewish history. The Canadian Gathering of Jewish Holocaust Survivors and Their Children will take place here from April 28 to 30. The Gathering will bring together Canadian Jews and non-Jews, survivors and their children, righteous Gentiles, and liberators.

The objectives of the Gathering are:

The objectives of the Gathering are:

• to gather Holocaust survivors on the occasion of the 40th anniversary of their liberation;

• to commemorate the six million Jews who perished in the Holocaust;

• to recognize the contribution of the Canadian armed forces in their struggle against our common enemy;

of the Canadian armed forces in their struggle against our common enemy;

• to show appreciation to Canada for the opportunity to build a new life out of ashes and despair;

• to raise the consciousness of the Canadian people to the consequences of racism and discrimination and to ensure that the lesson of the Holocaust is not forgotten or perverted;

• to honour the Righteous Gentiles who chose to save the lives of innocents in the face of raging inhumanity, without regard to personal perils; and,

• to express our solidarity with the Jewish people throughout the world and the State of Israel, and our commitment to the fundamental principles of world peace, freedom, justice, democracy, and equality.

The definition of who is a survivor is a varied one: there are survivors of death camps, slave camps, ghettos, occupied cities and countries, and those who survived in hiding or with false identity papers; there are those who survived in the woods fighting with partisans and guerillas; others who had the opportunity, valiantly joined their countrymen in fighting the German Nazis; still others survived the war years by enduring hardships in the Soviet Union and elsewhere; there were also pre-war refugees who fled to safe havens.

The Nazi objective was to murder every Jewish man,

Jewish Congress has put it this way:
"We must remember, as history has taught us so well, that while it may begin with Jews, it does not end with Jews; that a world which is not safe for democracy is not safe for Jews; that a world which is not safe for Jews; that a world which is not safe for Jews is not safe for Jews is not safe for Jews.

For at a time when Neo-Nazism and racism are rearing their ugly head; when "stealing the Holocaust" becomes an intellectual idiom; when there are those who accuse "Zionists" of having collaborated with the Nazis to bring about the Holocaust — a new form of group libel — while others deny even that the Holocaust ever occurred; when formal 'legal' indictments are being brought against oppressed Jews not for what they do but who they are — Jews; when assaults on human rights take place in a deafening silence — we must act."

JNF annual Telethon to cover community Sunday, February 3

Norman Torontow, Chairman, Jewish National Fund of Ottawa is pleased to announce the appointment of Roslyn Taller as chairman of the annual Tu B'Shvat Telethon. The 1985 Telethon, sponsored by the Jewish National Fund of Ottawa, will take place on Sunday, February 3 from 10 a.m. on.

ady, February 3 from 10 a.m. on.

Actively involved in Pioneer Women, Hadassah, UJA and the Women's Auxiliary of Hillel Lodge, Mrs. Taller's goal for JNF is to achieve an outstanding response to the 1985 appeal.

Tu B'Shvat, a celebration of the New Year of the Trees, in Israel marks the end of the rainy season and the beginning of spring. Today, Tu B'Shvat is observed in Israel by the mass planting of trees. Jews in the diaspora share in the celebration by supporting the work of

Roslyn Taller
Jewish National Fund in the planting of trees. The monies raised by the Tu B'Shvat Telethon will be used to continue this and other vital activities of the Jewish National Fund in Israel.

JNF activities in Israel include afforestation, irrigation, land redemption and road building.

Galil Canada is a major project of JNF Canada for the eighties. This major undertak-ing will see the creation of in-frastructures for 14 new villages in the Galilee. The challenge is to increase Jewish presence in an otherwise barren and an otherwise barren and isolated zone.

The annual Tu B'Shvat Telethon enables the Ottawa Jewish community to show its support to the people of Israel. The success of the telethon depends upon reaching every household in Ottawa. Because this is extremely difficult to do on Telethon Sunday, an insert will be placed in the next issue of the Ottawa Jewish Bulletin. Roz Taller hopes the community will respond by returning the order forms early or by phonning the JNF office at 230-9047. Anyone willing to participate in the Telethon as a canvasser can contact Roz Taller at 737-3369 or the JNF office at 230-9047.

Vaad Report

by Harvey Lithwick

President, Ottawa Vaad Ha'Ir Jewish Community Council

Ethiopian Update

The Vaad Executive was privileged to hear an in-depth report by Alan Rose of the Canadian Jewish Congress on his recent mission to Ethiopia. His general views have been carried in the Canadian Jewish News. He did stress for us the central importance of Israel's absorption program. That program requires major assistance from Jewish enmunities outside Israel. To that end, I have asked our U.J.A. people to assign a special account for persons who, in addition to their regular U.J.A. commitments, wish to contribute to that assistance program. Those funds will be transmitted directly to the Ethiopian absorption program in Israel.

Israel.

Many Jews have asked mc if they should be supporting the general famine relief efforts. This is an important issue, because despite their difficult circumstances, most Ethiopian Jews do not reside in the worst-hit regions of the country.

The position of Canadian Jewish leadership, and one which I wholeheartedly endorse, is that as Jews concerned with Tzedaka and with every human life, we should assist in whatever way possible to relieve this terrible tragedy. The Council of Jewish Federalions has already granted substantial communal fundings to just such efforts. Everyone is encouraged to make additional private dunations. This will, in no way, detract from nur other very serious concern will Ethiopian Jews.

Canada-Israel Annual Dinner

One of the more important and infirmative events on our community calendar is the Annual Conference and Parliamentary Dinner of the Canada-Israel Committee.

This year the Conference and Dinner will be held at the Skyline Hotel on March 12 and 13. Please note these dales in your calendar as the arrival of many new M.P.'s in tuwn makes this an unusually important event.

Young Leadership

I had the pleasure of attending the "graduation" of the Young Leadership Group several weeks ago. Some 20 young men and women have met over the past year, inquiring into the organization of our community and the issues that face it. They have been briefed by professionals and by lay leaders and have sat in on meetings of key organizations.

I was fascinated to learn of their experiences and lo hear such

I was fascinated to learn of their experiences and Io hear such refreshing and frank views. They have already made a commitment to the community by their participation in this very important program. Now they will be joining our boards and agencies and will be making a tangible contribution to them.

I would like to thank Steve Greenberg who did a superb jub of chairing this group and Jerry Solomon who managed to create an air of excitement and concern ammng a group that is all too Iten written off as being self-centred and uninvolved. What I saw and heard convinces me that if we make the effort, there is limitless talent in our midst waiting to be drawn upon.

Hugo and Ruth Davis Levendel Endowment Fund is established

The Officers and Directors of the Ottawa Jewish Community Foundation welcome the establishment of the Hugo and Ruth Davis Levendel Endowment Fund by Hugo Levendel. ### Commentary by Cynthia Engel Editor

Eleven days into the new year and already the best laid resolutions are shot to hell.

Amazing how the human mind works. Amazing how we look to a flip of the calendar to solve all the ills — poof — in our complicated lives. What an onus we put on ourselves!

As of the stroke of midnight December 31 we unfailingly resolve that we shall never...

•smoke again
•let anything even remotely resembling a Hershey chocolate kiss pass our ruby red lips
(the two all time favourites)

As of the stroke of midnight December 31 we unfailingly resolve that we shall never...
•turn on a kitchen tap when the cause of our current irritation is showering is showering

*attempt to alter the long standing lifestyles of our children's grandparents
*indulge in gossip, petty and otherwise (now c'mon)
*kick the cat
In one swell foop we expect to metamorphose into a whole new person. Well, 'tain't possible. Not all at once, anyway.
In the words of the inimitable Popeye, perhaps it is time to accept the wisdom inherent in the phrase, "Eye yam what eye yam!"
Still...it would be so nice to be able to give up those awful cigarettes without wanting to replace them with a Hershey kiss, or two...or four...or six...
A happy, happy 1985!

Inserted into this issue of the Bulletin you will find The noname Jewish Newspaper, successor to L'Chayim which we have enjoyed in the past. The no-name was ably edited by second year Carleton Journalism student Ariela Friedmann who hails from St. Catharines, Ontario. It is interesting, fun, informative and even a little racy (see what our Rabbis have to say about Jewish attitudes toward sex!) It's a good read...enjoy!

To Ariela and her staff of contributors and layout people, congratulations on a job well done.

To my regret, my last column in this Bulletin contained a number of printing errors. The most serious of these was the omission of the name of Larry Hartman, my Deputy Chairman, who has been extremely helpful to me in the 1985 Campaign.

I want to apologize for the mistake and at the same time, thank Larry for his support, advice and time which he has devoted to the cause.

With so many people away during the holidays, the campaign has slowed to a crawl but we will be back in full force next week to clean up all outstanding cards.

If we have not made contact yet, I promise you we will be in touch. In the meantime, I wish everyone well for 1985.

View from the Pulpit

Contemporary Marriage

By Rabbi Sanford Marcus Temple Israel

We live in a time when everything must be both visible and accessible. The barn doors stand wide open. Products are sold by appealing to sex. Society is permeated by the erotic. As a result, when we speak of love, more often than not the dimension of sex gets the preponderant focus rather than all the other components that go into love — like understanding, compassion, unselfishness and sharing. As a result we are slow to discover in marriage the depth of relationship that can be achieved in truly getting to know another human being. Instead we strive for what we perceive by the senses.

To reinforce the contemporary superficiality, there are profuse books, articles, movies and TV shows that buttress the idea that sex can get along well without marriage. Young people sometimes ask, so what is there about marriage that's so unique?

Marriage can indeed become only a temporary arrange Marriage can indeed become only a temporary air algo-ment that is satisfying merely as long as it is exciting. It has to remain a peak experience — all the time, for this criterion is not kedushah (sanctity) but excitement; not commitment but trial and error. Such a marriage becomes only a temporary arrangement that lasts until something better comes by

True marriage should aim to last — beyond the passion of youth — all the way through the years when physical intensity naturally diminishes.

Marriage should be strong enough to withstand times of disagreement and argument — knowing that these times will pass and that the couple will readjust their relationship in a unique and different direction.

In a time when the roles of men and women are changing, the pressures on marriage are multiplying. Perhaps we even expect too much. Mobility and rapid communication can force a couple into hasty decisions, often without sufficient time to communicate. The family has to endure enormous pressures that encourage divisiveness and separation. But if we let the family as we know it break down, I am afraid that we shall lose one of the greatest opportunities for closeness and nurturance — not to speak of an environment of trust and constancy for rearing children — an opportunity that goes far beyond what we can achieve as individuals. In a time when the roles of men and women are chang-

Judaism has long been realistic about marital breakdown. Not all marriages work out. No religious obstacles were put in the way of divorce. But marriage has always been regarded by the Jewish people as a serious responsibility, designed to last a lifetime.

So what about the family in our future? There are infinitely more divisive pressures around today. Yet when we speak of the perils and frustrations that are inevitable in every marriage we also need to remember that through such frustrations and tensions we grow and become better, more adjusted, and more flexible. I am convinced of the wisdom of the Torah's statement: 'It is not good that man should be alone.' When faced by challenge and difference of opinion, I only pray that young people today decide to give the relationship every chance. Marriage demands determination, maturity, patience, sensitivity, a sense of humor, a bit of wisdom, and a little help from the Ribono shel Olam, too.

Argentine package grisly proof undemocratic elements prevail

A package of human bones shipped through the mail in Argentina provide grisly evidence that unrepentant undemocratic elements there continue functioning, according to the Anti-Defamation League of B'nai B'rith.

Rabbi Morton M. Rosenthal, director of ADL's Latin American Affairs Department, reported that such "a ghoulish parcel" was recently delivered to the parents of Patricia Uchansky Rubinstein, a young Jewish woman who disappeared in 1977, with an enclosed note claiming that they were her remains. her remains.

Shocked, the parents took the package's contents — a skull, a jawbone, a femur and three ribs — to a laboratory to determine their origin. The analysis revealed that they were male bones and therefore could not have been Patricia's skeleton.

Ms. Rubinstein's mother, Beatriz Serebrinsky, president of the Mar del Plata office of the Mothers of the Plata de Mayo, a group of parents whose children were "disappeared" during the period of military rule, said after the incident, "We will not give up our fight even if they throw bones in our faces."

Describing the macabre mailing as "a horrendous act," Armando Fertitta, who was head of the Mar del Plata branch of the now dismantled presidential Commission on the Disappearance of Individuals (CON-ADEP), charged that it was done by "neo-facist groups who are trying to bring about another coup."

That there was some truth to his accusation was indicated when a group known as "Condor 33" claimed responsibility for the parcel.

Rabbi Rosenthal said that the incident seems to be part of a widespread campaign of harassment which also includes anonymous phone calls to relatives of the disappeared which purportedly give details of their fate.

Disturbing resemblance between the Green Party and Nazi party

By David Kantor

BONN, (JTA) — Frequent allegations of a resemblance between the Green Party, which has won 10 percent of the has won 10 percent of the popular vote in recent national and regional elections, and the rise of the Nazi Party in the Weimar Republic more than a Weimar Republic more than a half century ago, has irritated leftwing Jewish intellectuals who share the ecological and pacifist philosophy of the Greens.

Nevertheless, the parallels are disturbing to many Germans, Jews and non-Jews, because the Greens manifest certain nationalistic tendencies and are distinctly unfriendly toward Israel.

Until recently, comparisons were drawn by political op-ponents of the Green Party, notably the ruling Christian Democratic Union (CDU) and Democratic Union (CDU) and its Bavarian counterpart, the Christian Social Union (CSU), both conservative. But at the Green Party's last convention, the Nazi analogy was expressed from within its ranks. It came from Rudolf Bahro, an ideological father figure of the Greens who complaimed that the party's rise in recent years was similar to that of the Nazis. His remarks triggered shouts of protest and Bahro undoubtedly forfeited much of doubtedly forfeited much of the high regard he enjoyed among the Greens. But clearly, his outspoken criticism set a precedent which cannot be ignored. There have since been other There have since been other voices raised in the party for a frank discussion of its ideologically mationalistic tendencies and of its organizational structures which bear on unpleasant kinship to those of the Nazis.

Hostility Toward Jews

The first evidence of a hostile attitude toward Jews emerged in 1981 when some branches of the party circulated a calendar containing anti-Semitic propaganda. When the Jewish Telegraphic Agency questioned this at the time, party officials initially tried to brush it aside.

But when evidence of the anti-Semitic nature of the calen-dar was produced, the same officials repudiated the behavior of the branches concerned. They maintained they could not be held responible for every in-cident that occurred in the par-ty which was then new and growing at a rapid pace.

During the war in Lebanon in 1982, the Greens issued a strong anti-Jewish statement. They urged the Bonn government to withdraw reparations money from Jewish Holocaust victims and make it available instead to the Palestinian and Lebancse victims of what they called a Jewish-made "holocaust." called a "holocaust."

Nazi Records

After their election to the Bundestag for the first time in March, 1983, the Greens admitted that several top party officials, including a member of the Bundestag, had Nazi records. Two of the officials were dismissed but the others retained their positions in the party.

party, In the summer of 1984, a delegation of the Green Party visited Israel to express support for the Progressive List For Peace, a coalition of Jewish lef-tists and Israeli Arab na-tionalists standing for election to the Knesset on a platform which called for the creation of a Palestinian state. When the German-Israel Association met for its annual when the German-Israel Association met for its annual conference in Bonn last month, the Greens were the only party in the Bundestag that did not send a representative, although they were invited. Concern over the Green Party's nationalistic tendencies arises partly from their anti-Western and anti-American slogans which sometimes resemble the slogans of neo-Nazi groups. Many Greens regard American troops in West Germany as an occupying force which makes it impossible for Germany to express its own specific national interests. The U.S. is largely linked by them to a "Jewish lobby" and its "aggressive" client, Israel.

The natural sympathics of most Greens lie with the Third client, Israel.

The natural sympathics of most Greens lie with the Third World countries and the "liberation movements." The Palestine Liberation Organization is considered a liberation movement; Zionism is regarded as an oppressive tool of Western imperialism, especially of American interests.

Sympathy with Palestinians

Sympathy with Patestinians
While the Greens do not question Israel's legitimacy as a nation, they give the clear impression that to achieve an understanding with the Arabs the Israelis must give up more than just the occupied Arab territories.
The typical Green attitude is that justice must be done to the

Palestinian refugees who left the territory of Israel in 1948. They are unaware of, or ignore, the fate of Jewish refugees who formerly lived in countrie countries.

According to party spokesman Heinz Suhr, the Greens have not had time to debate the Arab-Israeli conflict in any detail. He said such a debate was highly desirable and would definitely take place sometime in the future. Suhr sharply denied that the Greens have anti-Jewish or anti-Israel attitudes

Israel Denounced

Nevertheless, earlier this month a so-called "strategic paper" circulated among the leaders of the Green Party denounced Israel as "fascist and terrorist" and referred to "terrorist policies" of Israel in south Lebanon which allegedly include random arrests and frequent tortures in specially frequent tortures in specially designated concentration camps.

This secret document, which was apparently leaked to the press, has triggered a sharp reaction by the Israeli Ambassador, Yitzhak Ben Ari, and has touched off an internal debate between the "hardliners" and "moderates" within the party A party within the party. A party spokesman insisted that the document was a "mere suggestion" that was never approved. But the party has not denied that all members of its leading body had seen the "strategic paper" and had failed to react.

Juergen Reents, a Green Par-ty member of the Bundestag who is heading a party delega-tion to four Middle East countion to four middle East coun-tries, said in a telephone inter-view that he did not see any reason to repudiate the authors of the document since the par-ty did not officially accept it.

The present trip to the Mideast by the party's delegation, which is composed of hardline radical elements, is a sign that this faction is not pleased by the earlier trip to Israel last July by the more moderate faction. The earlier delegation was headed by Otto Schilly, a Bundestag member who has won a reputation as a pragmatist and a realist.

pragmatist and a realist.

While Schilly has sharply criticized Israeli policies he has also gone out of his way to denounce anti-Semitic manifestations in his party. According to him, the Green Party is still organizationally fluid and has not yet formally and sharply identified its political position on a number of issues, including the Mideast, and that some who identify themselves as Greens have gravely damagas Greens have gravely damaged the reputation of the party.

Congress Highlights

The National Religious Affairs Department of Canadian Jewish Congress has compiled a new national synagogue directory.

"This is the most complete listing we have ever had," said Rabbi Robert Sternberg, Director of Religious Affairs for Congress. "The last listing was published five years ago and covered only synagogues affiliated with Congress. The new listing has much more information on every synagogues are listed in the 40-page directory. Synagogues are listed in the 40-page directory. Synagogues from Hebrew Congregation in St. John's, Newfoundland to Congregation Emanu-el in Victoria, British Columbia are listed with an amazing array of detail.

The directory is a demographer's delight. Aside from names and addresses, most list the name of the rahbi, the denomination, the number of family memberships, their various committees and whether or not they operate an afternoon school.

Rabbi Robert Sternberg, Director of Religious Affairs for Congress, notes "Conservative congregations are a lot stronger than they appear. Most of the synagogues are Orthodox in Canada, but the biggest synagogues, except in Montreal, Ottawa and Halifax, are Conservative."

JTA News in Brief

TEL AVIV — The number of Israelis who favor the speedy, unconditional withdrawal of the Israel Defence Force from Lebanon is growing and while those who favor withdrawal, but only under certain conditinns, remain a majority, their numbers have declined according to a public opinion poll published recently.

The poll showed that as of the end of November, 19.1 percent of the respondents favored immediate, unconditional withdrawal of the IDF, up from 12.7 percent in October. Another 10 percent would have the IDF withdraw, but only if it is replaced by the Israel-backed South Lebanon Army (SLA). This was down frum 11.2 percent in October.

The large majority of Israelis, 62.6 percent, indicated in November that they would suppurt withdrawal only after suitable security arrangements are made with the Lebanese government and other involved parties. In October, they had constituted 64.1 percent of the respondents.

The number of Israelis who want the IDF to remain in Lebanon for the foreseeable future dropped from 8.9 percent in October to 6.5 percent at the end of November. The poll found that those in favor of withdrawal are mainly women, the children of European and American families and the better educated and more affluent sectors of the population.

freedom of movement that Rabbi Meir Kahane, leader of the extremist Kach party, enjoys as part of his parliamentary immunity.

The proposal does not strip Kahane of his immunity. But it requires the Knesset Speaker to hold a secret ballot within 24 hours on whether or not to limit it.

Kahane has announced his intention to visit Arab villages in Israel to try to persuade the residents to leave Israel voluntarily and to prevail on Jewish women married to Arabs to desert their husbands. There has been a move underway in the Knesset for some time to strip Kahane of his immunity so that he may be prosecuted for racist agitation against Israel's Arab citizens.

Kahane was barred by pnlice several months ago from entering the Arab village of Umm el-Fahm where large numbers in Jews had joined Arab villagers in a demonstration to keep him out. The police said at the time that they acted because Kahane's presence would have resulted in a clash and breach of peace.

TEL AVIV — Vultures, the winged scavengers of desert regions, may be un-loved by most humans. But Yaacov Segal, keeper of the Tel Aviv University zoo, is not one of them. He is trying to arrange a love-match between two of the creatures in the hope of reversing the near extinction of a rare species, the lappet-faced vulture, a habitue of the Negev.

The prospective mates are a 33-year-old vulture named Rosa and a nine-year-old male, both members of a breeding group at the university's Canadian Center for Ecological Zoology.

The age difference apparently is no problem. But Segal's presence at the mating is essential. He has cared for Rosa since she was brought to the zoo as a chick and she apparently regards him as her "mate." Rosa has laid eggs for Segal. But a male vulture is required tn fertilize them.

The lappet is a strnng predator, with pnwerful curved bill, sharp claws and nine-foot wingpsan. Its name is derived from the distinctive skin folds (lappets) on its neck. Once a familiar sight in the Arava valley south of the Dead Sca, there are now said to be only two or three of the birds left in the region. Other subspecies are found throughout Africa but their numbers are rapidly dwindling.

PARIS — A book describing the arrest and depurtation to death camps of 44 Jewish children when Klaus Barbic was gestapo chief in Lyon will be part of the cyidence presented against the Nazi war criminal when he goes to trial, possibly next summer.

The book, "The Children of Izieu: A Jewish Tragedy," was compiled by lawyer Serge Klarsfeld who, with his wife Beate, have devoted their lives to tracking duwn war criminals and bringing them to justice. The couple was instrumental in prevailing on the Bolivian government to expel Barbic a year ago. He had lived in Bolivia for some 30 years under the alias Klaus Altmann.

Following his ouster early in 1983, he was taken into custody by the French authorities. He is presently confined in the Mont Luc Fort prison in Lyon.

Deborah By Esther Krietman Virago Paperback, 366 pages

In my last column I reviewed Love and Exile, three previously published autobiographical memoirs by Isaac Bashevis Singer with a new introduction, In the Beginning.

While Singer mentions his brother Israel Joshua as mentor, the two of them struggling in their orthodox parents' home in Poland to pursue their in their orthodox parents' home in Poland to pursue their literary inclinations, he never speaks of his sister, Hindele, as an equal who shared the same literary passions and interests. It is thought that Bashevis' story Yentl is based on his sister Hindele but Barbara Streisand's movie adaptation tells us more about Singer's sister than Singer ever cared or managed to tell his readers.

Singer's fictional women are to tell his readers.

Singer's fictional women are varied, but clearly his sister with her aspirations belonging to the male realm was doomed to be possessed for life by imps and demons. Letting her intellect take precedence over her womanly instincts and functions would lead her to certain doom. But after reading this novel by Singer's sister, one wonders if she was unjustly sentenced.

sentenced.

Deborah is fictionalized Hindele Esther, fictionalized by Hindele Esther herself, not her brother Isaac Bashevis or her brother, Israel Joseph. While she uses the novel form, her effort clearly falls into the category of memoir and hence we learn more about the Singer family, from a third writer's point of view. To call her outlook particularly female would be robbing her of what she managed to achieve, the depiction of recreated Jewish life in Poland at the turn of the century.

Born in 1891 in the house of her maternal grandfather, the rabbi of Bilgorai, she like her brothers was victim of the traditional orthodox division between populist Hasidism practised by her father and the more intellectual Haskalic Judaism practised by her mother's family. Like her brothers, Hindele Esther read and yearned for the secular. She shared their keen interest in observing and recording. Born in 1891 in the house of observing and recording.

With intelligence and candor she recreates her childhood years leading up to her arrang-ed marriage to a Belgian dia-mond cutter from Antwerp.

However she is in love with another man, a Jewish socialist named Simon who refuses to return her love because she's a famous rabbi's daughter. Simon does not stop here. He thwarts Deborah's only chance of freeing herself from her roots by insisting her membership in a Warsaw Socialist cell be discontinued. For a good section of the novel, Deborah found happiness attending the cell's meetings, working at ordinary jobs. But her genuine love of romance and idealism to which she looked for deliverance became her new chains as she was cut off from the life she chose to live by the man she loved. Her husband takes her away from Poland to a new land where she constantly daydreams about her past: "What a fool she was, talking away to herself and pretending to be a Marxist in skirts."

In Deborah Exther Kreitman has managed to speak out in spite of the attempts to harness her about the imbalance between orthodox Jewish men and women in Poland at the turn of the century. Deborah was first published in Yiddish in 1936 and translated by Krietman's son, Maurice in 1946. This current paperback adds an ironic postscript to the brothers Singer. Esther Kreitman was the first of the siblings to pick up the pen to write stories, all of which were destroyed before her arranged marriage!

Child Abuse: Your Role By Marlene E. Cherun, MSW

Recently I had the opportunity to attend a workshop on Sexual Abuse of Children sponsored by the Planned Parenthood Federation of Canada. Although a difficult and upsetting subject, it is one which cannot and must not be ignored. Of all the forms of child abuse, sexual abuse is perhaps the most difficult one for people to come to terms with

to terms with.

Some disturbing facts about a disturbing topic: Most sexual abuse seems to be committed by parents, relatives or friends of the family, rather than by strangers. There has been much attention given to the threat to our children from strangers. As a result, we are becoming suspicious — and perhaps over-teaching our children to become suspicious — of attention and kindness shown by "strangers". The evidence suggests, however, that sexual abuse most often takes the form of incest and occurs more often than we are willing to acknowledge.

by "strangers". The evidence suggests, nowever, that exnual abuse most often takes the form of incest and occurs more often than we are willing to acknowledge.

There is no easy way to detect sexual abuse of children or to prevent it. Children do not always appear to be damaged by an incestuous relationship and they rarely want to leave home. Typically they feel responsible for "allowing" the relationship and, as a result, the potential for psychological damage is enormous.

"But how can I tell if my child is being sexually abused?" you may well be asking yourself. The indicators may be a dramatic change in your child's behaviour, such as withdrawal or aggression, or in your child's beginning to act out sexually. There are physical symptoms to watch for, such as irritation or soreness of the genitals. Any unusual knowledge or vocabulary on the part of your child could be a symptom as well.

It is critical that a child's disclosure of sexual abuse be handled with sensitivity, as negative reactions, including expressions of horror, disbelief or blame, can sometimes be as damaging to the child as the act itself.

What to do if you know that a child has been abused

What to do if you know that a child has been abused

Make no mistake: Sexual abuse of children is a crime. Withholding information about sexual abuse is also a crime. Immediate help is available—both for the abuser and the abused—from the Children's Aid Society and from the Child Protection Team at the Children's Hospital of Eastern Ontario. Victims can be helped to overcome the damage done them through sexual abuse. For most of you the more pressing issue is the prevention of this traumatic situation. On a global and family scale, the answer lies in education. Teach your children that they always have choices where their bodies are concerned, that they do have the power to say no. In addition, school boards are incorporating sexual issues—pornography, responsible sexuality, sexual abuse—into their curricula and are training their teachers to respond constructively when asked to deal with this issue, whether by individual students or in a classroom.

Basically, however, the responsibility of educating your child is yours. It is also your legal responsibility to report any suspected abuse to the Children's Aid Society. Remember that early reporting of sexual abuse of a child often results in the family receiving the help and guidance needed to prevent a major crisis. For further information on this or other issues of concern, contact us at 238-6351, — confidentiality is assured.

Attack on Jewish Feminists as 'Jezebels' raises mighty protest

By Ben Kayfetz

TORONTO, (JTA) — An attack from the pulpit on Jewish feminists as "Jezebels" given to "self-worship" as "opposed to worship of God" has raised a storm of protest in the Jewish community and brought strong rejoinders from two prominent Orthodox womes who are Orthodox women who are

The two, Blu Greenberg of Riverdale, N.Y., who has written extensively on Jewish religious matters, and Norma Joseph, who teaches at a Montreal university, were named by Rabbi Immanuel Schochet in a speech to some 300 persons at Shaarei Tefila synagogue here in December.

Schochet, who is Orthodox with leanings toward Hasidism and teaches philosophy at a community college, titled his address: "Jezebel as Rabbi—Deforming Religion by Feminist Reforms." It was an attack on demands by women to participate fully in Jewish religious ritual in the synagogue and the ordination of women as rabbis.

According to Schochet, halacha (religious law) specifically excludes female participation in certain func-tions. "If women do not like this, they should take up their case with God directly and demand and await a new revela-tion which will sanction any changes," he said.

Schochet denounced reforms Schochet denounced reforms such as counting women for the minyan or calling women to the Torah as "not only a denial of Jewish tradition but a perversion of common sense." He went on to say: "The modern Jezebels that we criticize are women in the Plan Country of the Jezebels that we criticize are women like Blu Greenberg and Norma Joseph. In their writings and talks they present themselves as members of the Orthodox tradition while simultaneously denying the authenticity and authority of halacha..." halacha...

as a contaminating foreign body, he is a poor philosopher, she said, adding: "I define myself as an Orthodox Jew because I observe halacha and am part of this community. There is a halachic process and what I perceive to be the criteria is to bring women more could-is to bring women more couldis to bring women more equal-

Joseph said Schochet's use of her name was "humiliating and it is scandalous for him to say at a public forum that 1 don't care about Jewish law...l don't deny halacha at all but 1 feel bound by it. 1 care deeply about being a Jew and the Jewish community. 1'm not a 'Jezebel'.'"

Rabbi Elyse Goldstein, assistant rabbi at Toronto's Reform Holy Blossom Temple, said Schochet's sermon title offended her as a woman, a rabbi and a Jew. Shalom Schachter, a local lawyer, said that while Schochet had a right to express his opinions, "to attach this kind of label and eliminate the legitimacy of the alternate point of view in such a harsh way is completely uncalled for."

Schochet said in a later interview that he used the term "Jezebel" as a "teaser" and a symbol of self-idolatrous people who put their own ambitions above everything else.

An Appeal from the Mayor Amountain

Like many residents of Ottawa, I enjoyed a joyous holiday season marked by a family reunion, thoughtful gifts, and abundant feasting

Consider the contrast between Christmas in Ottawa and Christmas in Ethiopia or other African nations.

Because we recognized the devastating proportions of the tragedy facing the African people, Council decided to provide the funds necessary to co-ordinate a fundarising effort in our community. Of the funds raised, half will be directed to feeding those who are hungry; the remainder will be directed to projects that will help ensure this tragedy does not happen to these people

The Federal government contribution will double the funds we raise, which will be distributed to authorized Canadian non-governmental agencies whose projects meet the criteria I have already described.

I know that Ottawa residents have repeatedly demonstrated their generosity towards their neighbours. But I must ask again, this time for neighbours you will probably never see or know. But with your help, next Christmas, Ethiopians will face food rather than famine.

Please make your cheques payable to the City of Ottawa, and mark on it clearly "AfricAid". Also, please ensure that we are able to read your name and address, so that we may issue a tax receipt.

Thank you for caring, and for sharing your relative prosperity in this way.

Yours sincerely.

Un appel du Maire

Comme bon nombre des résidents d'Ottawa, j'ai passé une joyeuse période des Fêtes marquée par une réunion de famille, des cadeaux bien pensés et de nombreux festins.

Pensez au contraste qu'il y a entre un Noël passé à Ottawa et un Noël en Éthiopie ou d'autres pays d'Afrique.

C'est parce que nons sommes conscients des proportions dévastatifices que prend la tragédie à laquelle font face les peuples d'Afrique, que le Conseil a décidé de débloquer les fonds nécessaires à la coordination d'une campagne de collecte de fonds dans notre milieu. La moitié des fonds recueillis iront directement à nourrir les gens qui ont faint; le solde sera affecté any projets qui ont pour but d'assurer que ce geme de catastrophe ne se répète pas.

Le gouvernement fédéral versera un montant égal aux fonds que nous recueillerons, et le tont sera distribué parmi les organismes non gouverne-mentaux canadiens autorisés dont les projets répondent aux critères énoncés

Je sais que les résidents d'Ottawa ont manifestè leur générosité envers leurs voisins à de nombreuses reprises. Je dois encore une fois faire appel à voire générosité, cette fois en favent de voisins que vous ne connaîtrez ni ne verrez probablement jamais. Mais grâce à votre aide, Noël prochain les Éthiopiens connaîtront la noncriture plutôt que la famine.

Veniller libeller votre chèque an nom de la Ville d'Ottawa en y indiquant clairement "AfricAid". De plus, veniller vous assurer que votre nom et votre achesse sont lisibles afin que nous puissions vous faire parvenir un reçu aux

Je vons remercie de vous soncier du bien-être de votre prochain et de partager avec lui votre prospérité relative.

Venillez agréer l'expression de mon sincère dévouement.

Mama Loshen Chevra — Sunday, January 20, 7:30 p.m.
On Sunday, January 20, Brad Sabin Hill will be giving a talk at the home of Isadore and Leah Kalin on the "Dialects of Yiddish". The address is 500 Avalon Place. Take the Queensway to Alta Vista South, then left on Dorion, left on Knox Cr. to Acton, which becomes Avalon.

Mr. Hill's rich and extensive scholarly background in Jewish studies and the Yiddish language made him a uniquely qualified appointee (in 1979) as the first Curator of the Jacob M. Lowey Collection — one of the great private collections of Hebrew printed books — at the National Library of Canada. He has made extensive contributions to Hebraic and Judaic scholarly Collection — one of the great private collections of relotery printed books — at the National Library of Canada. He has made extensive contributions to Hebraic and Judaic scholarly bibliography and has authored the first catalogue of rare Hebraica and Hebrew incanabula published in Canada. Currently, Mr. Hill is completing his M.A. in East European Jewish studies at McGill University. His impressive scholarly range, combined with his great love of the Yiddish language, promise to provide an exciting, memorable evening to all those interested in the unique joys of the Yiddish language.

Ottawa to get Ted Allan play

Author, Ted Allan

Author, Ted Allan
Ted Allan is one of Canada's most talented and nulti-faceted writers. Born in Montreal, he is probably best known to Canadians for his Montreal-based award winning film, Lies My Father Told Me, for which he wrote both the original story and the screenplay. Produced by Harry Gulkin — now Director of the Saidye Bronfman Centre — and directed by Jan Kadar, it received several awards, including an Academy Award Nomination for Best
Screenplay in 1976, the Golden Globe Award for Best Foreign Film Award for Best Screenplay that same year, as well as five other Canadian film well as five other Canadian film awards.

His short stories have appeared in The New Yorker, Harpers and other important publications, and his dramas, comedies and documentaries have been featured on both BBC and CBC for the past 30 years. "The Scalpel, The Sword, The Story of Dr. Norman Bethune", co-authored with Sydney Gordon, has been published in 19 languages and has sold over a million copies. A new book, "Love 1s A Long Shot" has been well received, while his screenplay for "Love Streams," a John Cassavetes film, has won the Golden Bear, Best Picture Award at the 1984 Berlin Festival.

"Lies My Father Told Me", the frankly autobiographical story of a young boy growing up in east-end Montreal, fits easily into the Yiddish idiom. This was the language in which the young boy, David, always spoke to his Zaida and, in fact, the language adds an extra authenticity to the moving and profound relationship.

Ottawans will be able to see this play, put on by The Yiddish Theatre, on March 24. Tickets will go on sale in February at the J.C.C., 151 Chapel St. and 881 Broadview, or call: 232-7306, ext. 58.

Our membership won't sit still for the weather. We've been to Ogdensburg, N.Y. We've been to Smiths Falls to the Hershey Chocolate Factory and made a side trip to Perth and the Balderson Cheese Store. Did we buy? We will have to double on the exercise program with Greg.

Our meetings are getting much more exciting. With the help of our director, Claire Horowitz, our plans are reaching out into different areas. Dr. Iris Richter, a clinical psychologist and daughter of member, Riva Lipfeld, held her audience captive with her straight out talk on stress in relation to our lifestyle. This lady will have to come back later in the winter when we will need another boost.

Our birthday celebrations are always a joyous time. Mary always a joyous time. Mary Klaman celebrated with a special cake for all. Mr. and Mrs. D. Radnoff celebrated 50 years of marriage. Gedaliah Rosenfeld spoke to us of the progress the Jewish us of the progress the Jewish Community has made in every avenue of lifestyles. And so it goes, with tentative plans for spring to get into and, of course, the immediate plans for Chanukah to make. I must say, in closing, how great it has been to get feedback from our Bulletin readers. They write: "How much we look forward to your articles, the photos you take, and it's great to see what a swell time the Golden Age Club is having." I have also compiled some photos of days gone by that are on the walls by compiled some photos of days gone by that are on the walls by the Social Hall and more will be going up shortly. ## ERC Spreads Chanukah Spirit

By Doreen Livingstone
A little bit of Chanukah came to South Hull Elementary School on December 11, and the halls were permeated with the tantalizing smell of potato

the tantalizing smell of potato latkes.

The occasion was a visit to the school by Beryl Ben-Reuven and Carole Starkman, representatives of the Jewish Community Centre's outreach library, the Educational Resource Centre.

The ERC, located at 881 Broadview, has made available Leurners Boxes which contain pertinent information on Judaism and specific Jewish holidays for use by all area schools and the general public. For Chanukah the boxes contained a dreidle, chanukia and candles, an outline of the story of Chanukah, as well as followup activities for use by teachers. In each of the 12 classes the team visited, Beryl "warmed up" the students by teaching them the meaning of the world shalom, then with Carole she told them the story of Chanukah. Each class was shown how to light a menorah, the significance of the dreidle, and the words and music to a dreidle song. Following the educational portion of the visit, the students devoured potato latkes donated by Jack and David Smith of the Melting Pot and Jack Edelson of Edelson Catering.

The 280 Grade 2 to 6 students are bused to the school from the Aylmer and Luskville area of Quebec and only three are Jewish. This is the second year the women have spoken to the classes.

The students were enthusiastic about the visit and questions about Chanukah often generated more questions about Judaism, other Jewish holidays and Israel. The visit was informative but also instilled a sense of pride in the handed a sense of pride in the handful of Jewish students. Following one of the sessions, as the students were leasing the classroom, one little girl approached Beryl and proudly proclaimed, "You know, I'm Jewish".

The driving force behind the creation of the Learners Boxes is Beryl Ben-Reuven, a recent newcomer to Ottawa, who brought her idea to the National Council of Jewish Women two years ago. That organization, in conjunction with the ERC, set up what has become a highly successful program. Learners Boxes are currently in great demand by both Carleton and Ottawa School Boards.

First Concert of the Israeli Philharmonic — January 7, 1936

Philharmonic — January 7, 1936

In spite of the hard times of early life in Israel, Jews found the opportunity to organize one of the finest instrumental ensembles in the world, The Israel Philharmonic Orchestra. It has maintained, to this day, a tradition of playing with the most celebrated conductors and soloists and has toured extensively overseas. In Israel it has approximately 40,000 subscribers.

Contemporary Israeli music is strongly influenced by eastern themes as well as by western rhythms. This cultural diversity creates a new integration. Performances of high quality are not only given in Tel-Aviv. They are also being given in small towns and kibbutzim around the country, from Kiryat Shmona in the north to Elat in the south.

The organization that is chiefly responsible for this project is a public corporation called Omanut La'Am (Art for People) founded in 1973. Omanut La'Am is helping to achieve some important national goals: to ensure that people who are accustomed to a high standard of art and culture would continue to receive this if they settled in outlying development towns; and to encourage the creation of a unified Israeli nation by helping the diverse ethnic groups to understand themselves and each other through the use of theatre, art and music.

A novel concept recently attempted by Omanut La'Am is the Cafe Concert, a small audience sits at tables around the musicians which brings it into much closer contact with the musical experience.

The success of Omanut La'Am is evident and well-known in Israel and contributes actively to the development of Israeli cultural life.

By Yehuda Amichai In this collection of short stories, the well-known Israeli poet, Yehuda Amichai, deals primarily with the existential dilemna of life and death. The ques-tion asked is whether either condition has any meaning. To convey this theme, Amichai employs many poetic techniques (such as the use of vivid metaphors) which serve to enliven the poetic techniques (such as the use of wivid metaphors) which serve to enliven the narrative and deepen its emotional impact. Plot and characterization are only briefly outlined, Feeling and meaning are conveyed through imagery.

Primarily, in these storics Amichai delineates the irony of life, wherein death is constantly present. In this context, man's preoccupations, love and war, become meaningless.

These stories then, emphasize the acute problems of man's perennial condition.

Weight training is a popular fitness training method. The term weight training however, does not always mean the same thing

Weight training is a popular fitness training method. The term weight training however, does not always mean the same thing to everyone.

Training with weights implies that the individual performs a number of voluntary muscular contractions against a certain resistance. Resistance may be provided by the person's own body weight (e.g. pushups); by free weights (dumb bells, or bar bells); or some form of pulley system (Universal machines, for example). The one common principle involved in weight training is that the muscle is made to work harder than it normally would. However, there are a number of different types of weight training. Bodybuilders usually train to develop bulk (the large bulging muscles that win Mr. Something or other titles).

Weightlifters on the other hand train to develop strength, technique, speed and ability. A third form of weight training is undertaken by the athlete who develops certain muscle groups in order to perform better in sport. Basketball players for example may concentrate on strengthening the leg muscles to improve jumping ability. A fourth type of weight training is undertaken by the individual who simply wishes to maintain a certain degree of muscle tone. He may not develop large muscles, but his musculature will be strong, flexible, and injury resistant.

These then, are the basics of weight training. The first step in undertaking a weight training program is to determine what the goals are: strength, bulk or tone. The training program will differ depending upon the specific goal desired.

For most of us, Mr. Universe type muscles, or the ability to lift 400 lbs. over our heads is not the issue. What is important is that our muscles are fit: strong, firm, and injury resistant. We should recall that in any physical fitness program, the main principles are frequency, intensity and duration. With weight training, three additional principles are important: number of repetitions, number of sets and the amount of weight used. To develop muscular fitness, heavy weights are not req

Sadinsky In Right

by Ian R. Sadinsky

Softhall Savior?

Just when it looked like the Ottawa Jewish Men's Soft-ball League looked like it might be running out of managerial momentum, along comes a new name, a new face — and poof! — it looks like the league may be in for a banner year in 1985.

The new name and face belong to Solly Patrontasch, and bels out more idea, and only the internation of fourteen

The new name and face belong to Solly Patrontasch and he's got more ideas and enthusiasm than a fourteen-year-old on his first date, He's 32, been in town about two years, hails from Montreal and is married with a one-year-old daughter. He works with computers (who doesn't?), but his first love is softball.

Solly came up to me at last year's softball banquet and asked to get involved. After a few phone calls and one meeting, Solly finds himself as League Convenor. Now who says this is a tough community to break into? You may have read Vaad President Harvey Lithwick's "Talent Hunt" column in the last edition of The Bulletin. His special blue-ribbon committee may want to take a look at how the sporting community integrates new blood in our town.

at how the sporting community integrates new blood in our town.

Anyone interested in working on the organization of the ball league should contact Solly — and I quote — "please don't include my phone number in the column. Anybody who feels strongly about something should have enough resolve to look me up in the phone book."

A Press Release
Can you believe it? Solly Patrontasch (you may remember him from the preceding item) sent me a press release announcing a proposed poll to determine a preferred format for the 1985 season. (I wonder who else got the release — the Journal de Montteal?)
The four formats run roughly as follows:
Format 1: Last year's three top "B" division teams join the "A" division and there are two distinct leagues of seven "A" and six "B" teams.
Format 2: Three divisions are created, with Division "C" purely recreational and adding three new teams. "A" and "B" play and interlocking, but have two separate championships.
Format 3: There is a total open deaft of ""

Format 3: There is a total open draft of all last year's players and any new registrants. There is only one division.

division.

Format 4: Each existing team "protects" up to four players and there is an "open draft" of all the other players. The league is divided into "A" and "B" divisions.

One final format calls for the same set-up as last year but with "A" teams playing interlocking games with other city conventional leagues.

There are approximately 4,328,416 other potential formats, but the four suggested here are the referred options. Watch this space for further details on the poll.

Maccabiah Money Man
Barry Appel, local businessman and sportsman (who still has one of the highest lifetime batting averages in the OJMSL), has been appointed special fund-raiser for local athletes who will be going to the 1985 Maccabiah Games. Ottawa athletes such as golfer Billy Holzman stand excellent chances of garnering individual and team awards, and Ottawans are urged to lend a helping hand to defray some of the costs of sending our best to compete against the best in the world.

More details to follow.

Roundball Roundup

Roundball Roundup

Jeff Pleet's Green Machine continues to lead the Ottawa Jewish Men's Basketball League standings at the Chanukah break with Perry Medicoft's Gold five close in pursuit. Billy Holzman's aging Blue demons hold down third place, while Douglas Macy's Red team fight it out with Eliot Shore's White and Dennis Edell's Black squads for the final playoff position.

Pleet, Medicoff, and Holzman remain as scoring leaders with unberalded Jeff Goldman and Dr. Lloyd Rossman edging their way towards the top.

Teen Connection has Chanukah Celebration

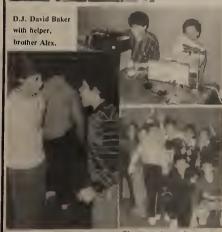

Teen Connection wound up 1984 with a fantastic Chanuka Social at the Jewish Community Centre. Saturday night, December 15, over 60 kids, full of the holiday spirit, turned out to celebrate Chanukah. They exchanged presents, danced to the music provided by the beautiful Baker boys and reminised about the best year ever for Teen Connection.

Special thanks go to Jonathan, David and Alex Baker for their D.J. services.

All Teen Connection members also send their thanks and their best wishes for a happy holiday and a well-deserved rest to Valerie Azuelos, Brian Hillcoat and Monika Barr, their ever-patient advisers. Teen Connection wouldn't be possible without them.

Time to open the gifts (don't ask what followed!)

Now look here ... you'll do it

Oh, what fun it is to ride in a two horse open sleigh!

There was so much more in '84 — Winterspree

Winterspree, like the New Year, has come and gone — not without a bang!

Thirty-five children filled the halls of good ol' 151 Chapel during the winter break to take part in the Winterspree festivities! Sports, arts and crafts, tobogganing, a sleigh ride, skating and swimming were but a few of the programs that kept these kids screaming for more.

There were kids as small as three and as big as eleven who kept the counsellors hopping. The cold weather certainly did not act as a deterrant as we made our way up to the Sundance Ranch for a two horse drawn sleigh ride. The kids, the counsellors, M.J. and George, all had a great time! (Right, kids.) And how about the toboganning! Inner tubes, space rockets and crazy carpets helped us all make our way down the Henry Park hill in a fast and fashionable manner.

Later in the program, there was skating at Brewer Park and swimming at the Clifford Bowie Pool where slides, rope walls and a whirlpool helped everyone to relax and enjoy the winter break — at Winterspree '84.

Fine Arts are Fun!

Children's Fine Arts classes at 881 Broadview Street resume in January. This successful program, now in its second year, is under the direction of artist, Roslyn Postner. After school a small group of children enjoy painting, drawing, sculpture, collage and puppet making in a relaxed atmosphere in which each child's uniqueness is valued and encouraged. From a professional background in art and psychology, Roslyn shares with the children her own love of art and the fun, excitement and satisfaction involved in creative activities.

The work of artists is introduced through gallery visits and books. Individual attention

Session to give info on cults

info on cults

The Parents Association of Hillel Academy will hold an informative evening on Cult Awareness at 881 Broadview Tuesday, January 22, at 8:00 p.m. A panel of experts in the area of cults will share their information and experiences.

The first hour of the program will be comprised of presentations by the moderator, Claire Horowitz and each of the panel members. This will be followed by a question and answer period. Featured speakers include Lawrence Greenspan, well-known Ottawa lawyer; Dan Hennessey, a high school teacher with extensive experience in the area; Rabbi Gershon Sonnenschein, who has worked as a deprogrammer; and Rita Engels, the parent of a former cult member.

The evening promises to be stimulating and rewarding and the community is invited to attend.

For further information contact Janice Raby Fine at 820-3621.

Appeal collects 8000 lbs. clothes

Approximately 8000 pounds of clothing was collected during the recent clothing drive held by the Ottawa Chapter for Ethiopian Jewry. The drive, headed by Joyce Pagurek, sent the clothing to Israel for use by Ethiopian Jews already there.

At last word, the clothing was aboard Zim Lines on the high seas bound for Israel and by press time, should have reached the thousands for whom it was earmarked.

The Ottawa Chapter for Ethiopian Jewry is an independent group of local people concerned with the well-being of Ethiopian Jews.

Organized under the auspices of the National Holocaust of the National Holocaust Remembrance Committee of the Canadian Jewish Congress, the Canadian Gathering is becoming a reality through teamwork and volunteer effort. Committee members from across the country, survivors, their children, students, academics, business people, and Jewish community organizations representing the broad spectrum of Jewish life in Canada are working together to make the Gathering possible.

A diverse program is plant.

A diverse program is plann-ed, including plenary sessions, seminars, workshops, film and art exhibits, cultural events, and a Survivors' Village — this display will be a focal point af-fording people the opportunity to meet, to remember, and to provide an understanding to children and grandchildren.

children and grandchildren.

Keynote speakers at the Gathering addressing the issue of "From Awareness to Action" will be Beate and Serge Klarsfeld, well-known for their efforts in the search for Nazi war criminals; Jan Nowak, a Polish resistance fighter; and Gretta Fisher, a social worker who entered the camps as part of the UNRWA team to rehabilitate displaced children, many of whom were sent to many of whom were sent to Cánada.

A full series of seminars and panel discussions, in both English and Yiddish, film presentations, oral documentations, and personal exchanges will deal with such topics as "Yiddish, Thread of Life", "Survivors' Contribution to the Canadian Mosaic", and "Threatened Jews".

Workshops and forums will address a variety of social, educational, political, and religious issues, including: "Holocaust As Hoax"; "Prosecuting War Criminals in Canada''; "Religious Responses to the Holocaust''; "Teaching the Holocaust'' and others.

The Opening Ceremony will take place on Parliament Hill and include an address by Government and community leaders. There will also be a wreath-laying at the Cenotaph.

The Gathering is an event for the entire Jewish community of Canada. The registration fee of $75 per adult (after February 1, 1985, $85) entitles participants to the following:

- admission to all plenary sessions, workshops, and seminars;
- admission to all film show-ings, art and book exhibits;

To anyone concerned with the future education of a child...whether they are parents or grandparents, the increasing costs of a university or community college education presents a serious future financial burden.

"For contributors to the USC plan whose kids received their last pay-ment last year, the average return on investment was 24.9% per year...not bad for a conservative investment."

League outraged by magazine ad

"Outrageous" was the response by the Anti-Defamation League of B'nai B'rith to British Airways elimination — by hand, in more than a quarter of a million copies of the airline's magazine — of references to Israel in a Sheraton Hotel ad.

Sheraton Hotel ad.

The ad, as originally presented by the Sheraton Corporation, consisted of a photograph of Jerusalem with the words "Come to Israel" beneath it and a photograph of the Sheraton Hotel in Jerusalem with the following description of its location: "The dramatic setting of the King Solomon Sheraton, a short stroll from the historic Old City." The words "Come to Israel" and the descriptive sentence were taped over in the magazines by British Airways because, the airline said, there is a view that Jerusalem is not in Israel and BA's politics is to remain neutral.

Bronya Shaffer addressing the closing event of N'Shei Chabad's International Month of Jewish marriage held in November.

Orthodox marriage discussed at seminar

N'Shei Chabad of Ottawa recently presented Mrs. Bronya Shaffer, of New York, speak-ing in conjunction with the In-ternational Month of Jewish ternational Month of Jewish Marriage.

Mrs. Shaffer, part-time therapist and community worker and full-time wife and mother of six, discussed the state of the contemporary Orthodox Jewish Marriage. In allowing that women should develop their every potential, she also stressed the role of the woman as the 'akeret habayit', literally the foundation of the home; as the one who sets the spiritual temper of the household. She pointed out home; as the one who sets the spiritual temper of the household. She pointed out that the woman's mitzvah of Shabbat candlelighting is both symbolic of and essential to the peacefulness and joy that pervades the Jewish home.

In discussing taharat hamishpacha, on the laws of Jewish family purity, she observed how ideas can change radically over time. In a group of New York Jewish feminists, the attitude toward the laws of Mikvah has evolved from ignorance through distaste to strong approval; mikveh is now considered by them to be the "ultimate feminist experience," Mrs. Shaffer says. In closing, Mrs. Shaffer gave guidelines stemming from Jewish tradition (Talmud) for ensuring "Shalom Bayit" or peace in the home. She said, "the wife must view her husband as if he were her king" and "the husband must honour his wife more than himself." This thoughtful strategy, though ancient in origin, would seem to apply well to today's couple.
